'Aggressive' mall takedown leads to investigation

Chinook Centre is conducting an internal investigation after a video surfaced of security guards aggressively subduing a man outside the mall Saturday night, with one guard appearing to throw three punches while four others had the man pinned to the ground.

But Dan Doussept plans to take matters further and ask police to investigate potential criminal charges against the security guards, who he said used unnecessary force against him.

"I want to follow up," the 31-year-old said Sunday. "Why is it that they are allowed to use this type of force?"

Tremaine Lea, who captured part of the incident on video, said he was just leaving the mall around 9 p.m. when he saw the security guards on top of a man.

"They were definitely hitting him pretty hard," Lea said. "To me, it seemed excessive."

Calgary police were called to the mall at 8:59 p.m., said Insp. Darrell Hesse, and officers cleared the scene shortly after 9:30 p.m.

"We did not arrest anybody and we did not charge anybody," Hesse said.

Chinook Centre marketing director Peggy Lim said the mall is investigating the incident.

In an email to Metro, Lim said, "We take this matter very seriously" and "Our priority is to ensure the safety of all patrons, tenants and staff at Chinook Centre."

Doussept said the incident began when he sat down on an escalator, a security guard told him to stand up, and a verbal argument ensued in a mall vestibule.

A guard can be heard in the video saying, "You punched me in the face," but Doussept denies striking any of the guards.

A guard can also be heard in the video saying to the man on the ground: "Listen to me. I'm going to f—k you up."

Summer negotiations

Nurses next major contract for province

After announcing a deal with the province's teachers on Friday, the province is now staring down contract negotiations with Alberta's nurses.

The contract for nurses working with Alberta Health Services (AHS) will expire on March 31, but both sides have agreed to let it continue until the summer, when bargaining is set to begin in earnest.

When announcing spending cuts and plans for a lean budget Thursday, AHS board chair Stephen Lockwood said he didn't want to negotiate the upcoming deal in the press.

"It is respectful to the people at (United Nurses of Alberta) that the negotiations on their contract are between our team and their negotiation team," Lockwood said.

United Nurses of Alberta president Heather Smith said she anticipates difficulty in reaching a deal, especially with the way the province has talked about public servants this year.

"I am not expecting an easy round of negotiations and perhaps not a speedy round of negotiations," Smith said.

Health Minister Fred Horne said he does not intend to get involved in the negotiations, but there are financial limitations in place.

"We're not providing direction to AHS, but the budget applies across the province, right?" Horne told Metro. "There are no funds for increases in the public sector for the next three years." RYAN TUMILTY/ WITH FILES FROM ROBSON FLETCHER

Offer was 'everything' teachers wanted: Memo

Meeting. School boards to weigh merits of new deal at Edmonton meeting Monday

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Calgary Board of Education spokesperson Richard Peter said an internal memo obtained by Metro contained only initial feedback to a teacher contract proposal opposed by both the board and the Alberta Teachers' Association. METRO FILE

As Calgary Board of Education officials huddle over a tentative contract for Alberta teachers, new details have surfaced providing a glimpse of the organization's opposition to the last offer shot down in late February.

The internal memo, dated Feb. 21 and obtained by Metro last week, outlines talking points and questions from the board on a contract that ultimately was voted down unanimously by executives with the Alberta Teachers' Association.

However, the CBE email claimed the proposed agreement gave the ATA "everything it wanted for its members without any accountability for student success."

The email goes on to question the ATA's influence over matters normally considered "management rights," and a portion titled "Subtext" questions "why would we allow a group with such a single-minded vested interest to disrupt a model that is working for students."

But when reached for comment on the email Friday, CBE chief communications officer Richard Peter, who sent out the email but claimed he did so on behalf of the system, deemed it a "historical document," given a new contract that was formally introduced Friday and is being recommended by the ATA executive.

"It was capturing the reaction to an agreement that's not even relevant anymore.... It's old news," Peter said.

But ATA spokesperson Jonathan Teghtmeyer, who reviewed the material for the first time Sunday, deemed the opinions expressed "disappointing."

"Teachers were focused on improving their teaching conditions in a way that had a positive impact on student learning — they seemed to have missed that completely," he said.

Peter declined to comment on statements made about the association because they were formulated in a private meeting.

New contract

- ATA spokesperson Jonathan Teghtmeyer said Sunday it's likely every one of the organization's local "bargaining units" as well as 62 school boards in the province would have to approve the new teacher contract.

CBE officials, like those with 61 other school boards, will now weigh the merits of a new deal formally introduced Friday. While the Calgary board is withholding opinions for the time being, Alberta School Boards Association president Jacquie Hansen said Sunday she has some concerns.

She indicated those would include funding for the potential need to hire more teachers to cover off a hard cap on instructional hours — set at 907 annually by 2014-15 — as well as a new exceptions committee that would allow a third-party group to override teaching-related decisions made by principals and superintendents.

"It (the deal) gets put together between the ATA and the government, but who has to deliver it and who has to respond the expectations of the community?" Hansen said. "The school boards do."

Calgary police investigate apparent stabbing death near Drop-In Centre

'Suspicious death.'
Centre staff try but fail to save bleeding man

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Police are hoping to interview anyone who witnessed a possible stabbing that killed a man near the Calgary Drop-In & Rehab Centre early Sunday.

Staff members at the centre rushed to the man's aid as he stumbled into a facility parking lot and collapsed.

Mitchell Bird stayed at the drop-in overnight and had stepped out to have a cigarette when he saw the man bleeding heavily from his mid-section.

"He fell, and then they rushed to help him," Bird said. "They were pumping his chest and everything.... He went a few minutes later."

Police would only call the man's death "suspicious."

Alan Facey, director of finance and administration at the drop-in, said it's believed the man suffered his injuries on a walkway underneath the nearby Fifth Avenue flyover.

Facey said the centre does have a surveillance camera in the area and had turned the footage over to police.

Police, meanwhile, said an autopsy was scheduled for Monday morning.

Victim's appearance

Witness Mitchell Bird described the victim as being his late 30s or early 40s and said he was wearing construction-worker clothes and steel-toed boots.

Police would only call the man's death "suspicious" as they kept a parking lot cordoned off for much of the day. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

City to run soccer centre, 'get busy' on construction

Officials are pledging to construct a new facility in this area soon. METRO FILE

Any plans to find a new operator for Calgary's largest soccer centre have been put on hold, but the city says the ball is rolling on two long-delayed construction projects at the site.

As of May 1, employees at the Subway Soccer Centre will be paid by the City of Calgary, ending a 25-year partnership that saw the facility run by the Calgary Soccer Federation.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi himself said in December the federation had some "organizational challenges" to work through but encouraged the group to bid to run the centre again.

However, city recreation spokesperson Michele McDonald said new operators will now only be sought after a replacement structure for a twice-collapsed bubble dome, as well as artificial turf fields, are constructed.

"The city's objective is to get busy and get started with construction, and we estimate that (completion) will take eight to 10 months," she said.

McDonald said too many variables exist to pinpoint a construction start date but added work would commence as soon as possible.

Federation President Angus Smith said his group was still working through the transition with the city and he hoped for little impact to employees as well as families using the centre.

Smith said the bulk of operating costs at the centre had been covered through corporate sponsorship dollars his team brought in.

"Whether they stay or not, only time will tell," Smith said of the sponsors. "It will truly be a test of whether the city can run the facility at the rate we (had) with a non-fee-based revenue." JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Best laid plans

City council approved a plan to borrow $5 million more for the replacement structure at the Subway Soccer Centre. Originally, officials had hoped to erect and open a new structure in 2011.

Morley Surcon, general manager at Eagle Professional Resources, initially allowed staff to work from home because space was tight in the company's old office but said the policy continued once they moved to a larger office. METRO FILE

Flexi-commute would cut congestion: Ald.

WORKshift. Plan developed by city staff to be presented to aldermen this week

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

A "one-stop-shop" website is among several elements in a new city plan aimed at encouraging Calgary businesses to allow employees to commute at non-peak hours or work more from home.

It's all part of the city's effort to reduce rush-hour congestion on roads and transit.

The plan also aims to identify Calgary businesses that would be most interested in flexible commuting policies and for the city, as a major employer, to lead more by example.

"Typically, employees are interested in flexibility in their work hours. It's the employers that have to recognize whether or not it works for their business model," said Ald. Richard Pootmans, whose motion at council last year led to the creation of the plan.

It's outlined in more detail at workshiftcanada.com.

Flexible work schedules have been successful at Eagle Professional Resources in Calgary, according to general manager Morley Surcon, who said allowing employees to work from home occasionally via online private networking has been good for productivity, morale and recruitment and retention.

Still, Surcon understands why some employers would be reluctant to adopt work policies that involve less direct supervision. But once you "build up the nerve," he said, "then you come out the other side and you're better for it."

The average daily commute in Calgary takes 67 minutes, something city officials hope will be reduced if more companies adopt flexible work hours and reduce peak demand on roads and transit.

Push for Keystone moves to New York Times ad

The Alberta government, continuing to press its case for the Keystone XL pipeline, took out an ad in Sunday's New York Times, tying the controversial project to core American values and to U.S. pride in its military.

The half-page ad is headlined "Keystone XL: The Choice of Reason." It acknowledges environmental concerns, but stresses the $7-billion pipeline is about much more than that.

"America's desire to effectively balance strong environmental policy, clean technology development, energy security and plentiful job opportunities for the middle class and returning war veterans mirrors that of the people of Alberta," reads the $30,000 ad.

"This is why choosing to approve Keystone XL and oil from a neighbour, ally, friend, and responsible energy developer is the choice of reason."

Stefan Baranski, a spokesman for Premier Alison Redford, said the ad was taken out to counter a New York Times editorial that ran a week ago urging U.S. President Barack Obama to reject the 1,800-kilometre TransCanada line.

"It's important for Alberta to get the facts on the table as widely as possible," Baranski said.

Obama is expected to decide the fate of the pipeline in the next few months.

Determine what you can afford for a new home by running budget scenarios for various mortgage and housing expenses. JUPITERIMAGES/COMSTOCK/THINKSTOCK

How much can you afford?

Budget. Avoid home poverty by determining what you can afford when shopping for a mortgage

LESLEY SCORGIE
For Metro

Picture this — you meet with a mortgage broker and after a series of questions related to your income, assets and liabilities, you are pre-approved for a $400,000 mortgage. You grin ear to ear because this is $100,000 more than you were expecting. You race out, purchase a home for your maximum limit, and for the next three years you can barely afford groceries. You are house poor.

Just because you are pre-approved for a large mortgage doesn't mean you should take it. Avoid home poverty by determining what you can actually afford.

Start by running budget scenarios for various mortgage and housing expenses. Compare how a $1,200 monthly mortgage payment combined with $250 in condo fees and property taxes affects your bottom line relative to a $1,400 monthly mortgage payment, no condo fees, but increased tax and utility expenses.

Once you have a ballpark idea of what you can comfortably afford each month, use online mortgage calculators to determine how this translates into a home price. Free calculators are available at canadamortgage.com, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation's homebuying tools or from any major bank's website.

Next, speak with at least three mortgage lenders to get a mortgage pre-approval — competitive offers will save you money.

Mortgage lenders use ratios to determine what you can afford, which translates into your pre-approval amount.

Your gross debt service ratio, which typically can't be more than 30 to 32 per cent of your gross monthly income, is comprised of your mortgage payment plus house insurance plus property tax plus heat bill. If you have a condo, you must include half of the monthly condo fee.

Your total debt service ratio, which can't be more than 40 per cent of your gross income, adds your other monthly debt obligations (credit card payments, line of credit payments, vehicle loans, etc.) to the gross debt service ratio.

Cut unnecessary expenses

- Home poverty is stressful because there is little money left over for things like RRSP contributions or fun activities. It's also cited as one of the leading causes of spousal spats. If you are running a negative bank balance for more than three months because of your home, you must increase cash flow by cutting unnecessary expenses, make more money, and take advantage of available government support and tax breaks.

If you are blowing through those ratios, you will need to pay down your existing debt or rethink your homebuying expectations.

Down payment. Saving is really worth the effort

Saving a down payment is hard work, but it's worth the effort. Home ownership enables you to build equity in an asset rather than throwing money away in rent.

Think about how much you will need for a down payment and the impact that saving will have on your budget — yes, you need a budget.

Using a spreadsheet, list all monthly income and subtract expenses. If you are broke each month, you will have to cut out unnecessary expenses like iTunes and restaurant lunches. Google docs offer free budget templates.

Experts recommend a 20 per cent down payment of the home's value. But financial institutions will often accept less. In exchange for the bank's extra risk, you pay a premium for an insured mortgage through the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC).

There are three approaches to saving a down payment: First, if you are a first-time homebuyer, using the Home Buyers' Plan (HBP); second, saving outside the HBP; or third, borrowing from family.

You and your partner can borrow up to $25,000 each, tax free, from your RRSP through the HBP. You will have 15 years to repay the funds, but there are drawbacks (see sidebar).

The best approach to saving outside the HBP includes using accounts that allow you to contribute regularly (on payday or in lump sums), earn interest, aren't easily accessible (reduced temptation), and don't put your funds at risk. The safest interest earning accounts are high-interest savings accounts, guaranteed investment certificates, and money market mutual funds.

Saving monthly works best when you have a fixed budget. Saving in lump sums works well when you receive bonuses, tax refunds or money from other sources.

If you are borrowing from family, sign a written agreement that protects both parties and, hopefully, prevents a family feud.

Besides winning the lottery, there is no magical way to save for a down payment. It takes hard work and frugal living. But the act of saving helps form healthy financial habits, which you will need once you are a homeowner.

LESLEY SCORGIE

Drawbacks

- The Home Buyers' Plan (HBP) has drawbacks. First, when you take money out of your RRSP, you lose the power of compounded interest and reinvested returns. Second, your repayments don't benefit from tax writeoffs because they aren't new money. Third, if you can't repay the minimum, you will be taxed on the difference between what you still owe and what you paid.

Home ownership enables you to build equity in an asset rather than throwing money away in rent. GEORGE DOYLE/STOCKBYTE/THINKSTOCK

Two escaped convicts arrested

Quebec. Prisoners climbed into a helicopter to escape Sunday, were found hours later

A dramatic daylight jailbreak involving two Quebec inmates climbing a rope into a hovering helicopter swiftly escalated into a large police operation on Sunday that saw both men tracked down hours after they fled.

Just before 8:30 p.m., police confirmed they had arrested Benjamin Hudon-Barbeau and two other suspects.

An hour later, police said they had found the second escapee, Danny Provencal, and set up a perimeter around the area where he was found.

Much of the action took place in Chertsey, Que., about 50 kilometres north of the Saint-Jerome jail from where the inmates made their escape.

Police wouldn't give any details about how the arrests were made or what those who had been arrested would be charged with.

Quoted

"As far as I know, it's a first in Quebec ... It's exceptional."

Yves Galarneau, correctional services manager who oversees Saint-Jerome jail

"They are all being transported to the nearest police station to be questioned by the investigators," said provincial police spokesman Benoit Richard. "They will be due in court tomorrow morning."

Earlier on Sunday, authorities had said Hudon-Barbeau, 36, and Provencal, 33, had broken out of the jail by clambering up a rope into a waiting helicopter.

Police tracked down the helicopter about 85 kilometres away in Mont-Tremblant, but only the chopper's pilot was still at the scene. The pilot was taken to an area hospital where investigators were expected to speak to him. Police said it was too early to know what role the pilot had played.

Hours after the jailbreak, a Montreal radio station, 98.5 FM, received a call from a man claiming to be Hudon-Barbeau, who said he was "ready to die" as he tried to evade police.

"The way they're treating me in there, it's unreal," the man told the station. "They won't let me be. They put me back in prison for nothing."

Authorities did not immediately speak to the claims made in the radio station interview.

Yves Galarneau, the correctional services manager who oversees the jail said he'd never seen anything like the dramatic escape in more than three decades on the job.

The jail experienced a mini-riot by about a dozen prisoners a little over a month ago.

Minors found guilty of rape

Steubenville, Ohio.
Pair sentenced to at least a year in juvenile jail in highly scrutinized case

Two members of a high school football team were found guilty Sunday of raping a drunken 16-year-old girl in a case that bitterly divided an Ohio city and led to accusations of a coverup to protect the athletes.

Steubenville High School students Trent Mays and Ma'lik Richmond were sentenced to at least a year in juvenile jail, capping a case that came to light via a barrage of morning-after text messages, social media posts and online photos and video that drew global attention. Mays was sentenced to an additional year in jail on a charge of illegal use of a minor in nudity-oriented material.

The length of their sentence beyond the minimum will be decided by juvenile authorities.

Mays, 17, and Richmond, 16, were charged with digitally penetrating the girl, first in a car after a party on Aug. 11 and then in a house.

The teenage girl testified Saturday that she could not recall what happened but remembered waking up naked in a strange house after drinking. She said she discovered her phone, earrings, shoes and underwear were missing.

The accuser was photographed being carried by Mays and Richmond. The photo led to allegations that three other boys saw something happening that night and didn't try to stop it but instead recorded it.

None were charged, fuelling months of online accusations of a cover-up to protect the football team.

The teens were granted immunity to testify and helped incriminate the defendants.

Ohio's attorney general said he planned to investigate whether anyone else should be charged. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five arrested in gang rape, beating of tourists in India

Children participate in a protest against child abuse and crimes against women in Bhubaneswar, India, on Saturday. BISWARANJAN ROUT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police said they arrested five men Sunday in connection with the gang rape of a Swiss woman who was attacked in India while on a cycling vacation with her husband.

All five men admitted to the attack, which occurred Friday night as the woman and her husband camped out in a forest in the Datia district of Madhya Pradesh state, said D. K. Arya, a senior officer.

Arya said the men, who are from nearby villages, were arrested in Datia. Police were searching for two other men believed to have been involved in the attack, he said.

The couple told police that the woman had been raped by seven or eight men but that it was dark and they could not be sure of the exact number, Arya said.

The men beat up the husband, tied him to a tree and then raped the woman, police said. They also stole the couple's cellphone, laptop and 10,000 rupees ($185 US).

The woman, 39, was treated Saturday at a hospital in the nearby city of Gwalior and was released that day, police said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Endemic problem

Figures from India's National Crime Records Bureau show that a woman is raped there every 20 minutes. The country's conviction rate for rape and other crimes against women is among the lowest in the world.

Tory horn-tooting. PCO stole Parks Canada's spotlight: Documents

Internal documents show the prime minister's department micro-managed a media event staged by Parks Canada, trying to erase the venerable agency from a public announcement while promoting the Harper government.

The incident is a case study in communications control from the centre, a signal feature of the governing Conservatives since they first came to power in 2006.

The event was an Oct. 17, 2011 news conference in Halifax to announce an agreement to transform Sable Island, a fabled sand crescent 290 kilometres off Nova Scotia, into a national park reserve.

The deal had been meticulously negotiated by Parks Canada with the Nova Scotia government over the course of a year, and proud officials wanted a splashy announcement as a way to celebrate Parks Canada's 100th birthday in 2011.

A media event was planned months in advance, with Environment Minister Peter Kent and Nova Scotia Premier Darrell Dexter joining Parks Canada officials for speeches and a signing ceremony.

Alas for Parks Canada, the carefully wrought plan started to unravel days before the event when a vetting team at the Privy Council Office began to pick apart the agenda, the news release and two background documents, demanding changes. Canadian Army. Major defence cuts expected this week: Leaked report

It seems the only soldiers who are safe from the coming budget axe are those that parade around Parliament Hill in the changing of the guard ceremony for tourists in the summer, a leaked report suggests.

Defence spending will be in the federal budget crosshairs this week as the Canadian Army faces another barrage of major reductions over and above the Harper government's established deficit-fighting strategy and program review.

An army-planning document, obtained by The Canadian Press, shows that land forces are bracing for a further eight per cent hit on operating and maintenance in the coming fiscal plan, in addition to an existing 22 per cent budget reduction.

The latest cuts, estimated in the range of $32 million, will slice into the army's ability to train for operations in the jungle, desert and mountains, and come on top of $226 million in cuts ordered in the government's strategic review and Deficit Reduction Action Plan, says a Jan. 31, 2013 document, written by Lt.-Gen. Peter Devlin.

There's expected to be an $8 million clawback on contracted services, and the army will be required to absorb a further $10 million related to civilian wages.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scaling back

- When criticized about how spending cuts appear to have singled out the army, Defence Minister Peter MacKay has pointed out that the army's baseline budget is $500 million higher than it was when the Conservatives took office in 2006.
- Defence sources say as much as $600 million will be cut out of military "readiness" in all branches in the coming year.

A screen grab showing the Vatican's English-language Facebook page. FACEBOOK

As I walk into his office, Paul Tighe is on the phone with Apple regarding The Pope App. Yes, this is the Pope's social-media office.

And Monsignor Tighe's operation would put any newspaper to shame. In the office next to his, a team tweets, adds content to the news portal news.va, uploads photos to Flickr, fine-tunes The Pope App for Android and Apple devices) and monitors livestream video.

"We have the Habemus Papam tweet ready to be sent out," Miguel Chavarra, a young Spaniard, tells me. Sure enough, the very same evening, as soon as a cardinal announced the magic words that made Jorge Mario Bergoglio into Pope Francis, the tweet goes out.

"Today's news model is short news and lots of images, and that's good for the church," explains Tighe, an Irish priest who's been in charge of the Pope's social-media operations — formally known as Pontificium Consilium de Communicationibus Socialibus — for the past five years.

"The church has always been very visual, and communications is like theatre. Just think of all the people waiting to see the black and white smoke." Indeed, as soon as the white smoke emerged, millions of people tweeted and retweeted the news.

Tighe's headquarters on Via della Conciliazione, in front of St. Peter's Square in Rome, illustrates the ironies of running the high-tech division of a millennia-old organization: it has a Latin name but operates in Silicon Valley-speak.

The mostly young staff of about 30, including several interns, work on state-of-the-art computers in offices decorated with the ubiquitous picture of the Virgin Mary.

In fact, the otherwise-conservative Vatican embraced social media early on. "The people who listen to us can bring the information to a wider audience," says Tighe. "We've made mistakes while adopting to social media. One of the biggest ones was to underestimate the dynamic and interactive nature of social media. One of our earlier forays was initially very successful but grew static because we didn't update enough. But we've learned."

James Callsen
calgary@metronews.ca

It's not easy being a fan of the Calgary Flames these days. I still am.

I always will be, but right now it's hard. It's hard staring down the barrel of a seemingly inevitable Jarome Iginla trade, where even the most fervent Iggy supporters have realized our beloved captain won't ever win a cup in the flaming C. It's difficult seeing what this team truly looks like without a high-end goaltender like Kiprusoff. It's also really hard to rationalize the almost-lost draft picks of the Ryan O'Reilly comedy-of-errors.

I'm no hockey analyst, but missing the playoffs three (and surely to be four) years in a row isn't just an anomaly. Dropping off the top eight for three years running surely can't be chalked up to a lack of heart, nerve and work ethic, can it?

The Sutter saga has had an untold impact on our club, but we've had nothing but underachievement under Jay Feaster. With apologies to a respected and successful coach like Bob Hartley, I just don't feel like he's the lifeblood to kickstart the franchise.

So where does this leave us?

After Iginla and Kipper have faded into the sunset, we will have replaced the heart, soul, the coach and the manager.

Who's left?

This is the stuff that gives me a sick feeling in my stomach because this team isn't even in tear-down mode yet, let alone rebuilding (and please, for Ed Whalen's sake, don't rebuild like the Oilers).

Is it rudderless? Is there a plan looking ahead? Management can't rely on the "we were so close to making the playoffs" line anymore, so where do we go from here? The list of people who haven't gotten fired or quit is getting shorter as time goes on.

We've seen the veteran management and players with experience come and go from this team with little to show.

A team flickering out

After Iginla and Kipper have faded into the sunset, we will have replaced the heart, soul, the coach and the manager. Who's left? This is the stuff that gives me a sick feeling in my stomach because this team isn't even in tear-down mode yet, let alone rebuilding.

Maybe it's time for a wild card? This is Calgary, a place where a maverick can really hang their hat! It's a young town where youth and energy is everywhere except for on the Saddledome ice. When it comes time, why not think young, unorthodox and just slightly crazy for our path? People to stir the pot, to change the complete attitude and get our organization's swagger back.

Even if it made it worse, it might be more exciting. Go Flames go.

RE: Horse as the Main Course, published March 4

"The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be judged by the way its animals are treated."

This quote, attributed to Gandhi, illustrates the progress Canada could make if it took a more innovative and humane approach to the slaughter of meat animals by world standards.

We are known for peacekeeping, what about the end of life treatment of our meat horses? What about a more peaceful death? Horses require special end of life management, they are not cows but rather are a prey animal and as such have heightened awareness.

Canada needs slaughter plants that are set up specifically for horses — tough job. Horses smell fear, smell blood, hear alarm vocalization and will jerk and throw themselves around to escape danger. Slaughter houses are not quiet. Special floors cut down on hazards but slippery conditions cause horse falls and injuries. Slaughtering horses is dangerous for the human handlers. Horses will struggle and flip themselves to get away.

Canada can be the world leader in innovative horse slaughter practices and then in good conscience ship overseas.

What has happened to Renton and crew in the last 20 years? HANDOUT

Trainspotting, all grown up

Sequel in the works. Director Danny Boyle confirms a draft of a script has already been completed, film hinges on original actors coming on board

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Those rumours about plans for a Trainspotting sequel are true, and there's already a draft of the script done, director Danny Boyle confirms. "These guys who in their early 20s as characters took enormous risks with their selves, with their bodies — what you can ingest, what you get away with at that age — what's it like when you hit your 40s, when you begin to creak and osteoarthritis begins to set in?" Boyle says. "I think it will be doubly reflective because the actors will have aged — you'll be looking at them 20 years older — the characters will be locked, presumably, inside their world still in Edinburgh in some way, and the audience of course will also be older. You'll go, 'Wow, what happen to that 20 years? Where did that go?'"

Novelist Irvine Welsh published a follow-up to the original novel in 2002 called Porno, though it's unclear if Boyle's film would have anything to do with that book. But original screenwriter and frequent Boyle collaborator John Hodge is already on board. "John will write it," Boyle says. "John's done an early draft. He's done a kind of exploratory draft on it, so we're starting to work on it."

But there is one major hurdle to the sequel going forward, as far as Boyle is concerned, and that's getting original stars Ewan McGregor, Jonny Lee Miller, Ewen Bremner and Robert Carlyle back together. "We haven't (secured anyone yet)," Boyle says. "I mean, we have to get the script right, because they will only do it if they think the script's good enough, I think. A few of them will obviously think, 'I shouldn't do that. If it's going to be disappointing, it would be really bad.' And they'll each make their own individual decisions. I think we won't do it unless we can get them all."

Director Danny Boyle says one major hurdle is getting the original actors on board. GETTY

Travel tidbit

Get on the bus

IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

When visiting a new city, one of the best ways to get to know it quickly is via one of the oldest travel institutions: the tour bus.

I've taken tour buses all over, including New York City, London (England) and most recently, Philadelphia. All of them operate on the same basic premise: to get you to as many local attractions as they can, while providing you with historical facts (and usually a few laughs) along the way with an experienced tour guide. In Philadelphia, for example, the Big Bus Tour was a double decker bus that travelled to the Liberty Bell, Benjamin Franklin's burial site, Independence Hall, even the Philadelphia Museum of Art for a run up the famous Rocky steps.

Most tour companies will offer a "hop on, hop off" option, allowing passengers to get off at prescribed stops near monuments, attractions, etc., spend as much time as they want and simply get on the next bus.

Many tour companies also have packages that include discounted tickets, and sometimes VIP lines for the attractions where they stop. For families travelling with little children and their equally little legs, this is an easy way to absorb a city. KATHY BUCKWORTH IS AN AWARD WINNING WRITER. Is your little one ready to graduate to a toddler bed?

Sleep routine. One sleep expert shares her advice for making the transition as painless as possible for you and your big boy or girl

NATALIE SHURE
Metro World News in New York

Easing your child through the transition from sleeping in a crib to a new bed doesn't need to be a nightmare.

Child sleep consultant Amy Lage has made a career out of helping families best approach this crucial moment in a toddler's life.

If your child cannot stay in a crib safely any longer (for example, your little monkey is making a great escape every night to crawl into bed with you) or is asking for a toddler bed, it might be time for Lage's advice.

One expert says age three is a great time to transition kids from cribs to beds. ISTOCK

Why is the transition from crib to bed so important?
We want to make sure that the entire family is getting as much sleep as possible, and that your children are well-rested. To avoid those middle-of-the-night wake-ups, it's important to set the tone and do it right the first time. It keeps everybody on track.

Your suggestion of letting a child pick out new sheets or a bed frame is an interesting idea. Do kids find this exciting?
Yes! Children are always a little nervous about the change. This makes them feel in control of the situation, which is so important for toddlers. They are so often grasping for control in their lives.

What sparked your interest in this topic? Did you have trouble transitioning your children?
I have a two-year-old and a two-month-old. The older one is actually still in her crib, and will stay until she asks to switch. In the sleep community, we really think it's important to keep children in their crib until they are really ready. I'm a big believer in waiting until three if you can.

Why is three the number?
At three, you can reason with them. Before that, most kids really can't comprehend guidelines or why it is important to follow directions. Until they can understand and recognize boundaries, it is so much easier to keep them in the crib, where they can have the best sleep.

Give your Eggs Benedict a makeover with asparagus

Adding asparagus into your breakfast or brunch is a simple, unexpected way to energize your body with essential vitamins and minerals.

Fibre is also an essential nutrient. Did you know that one slice of bread contains as much fibre as one cup of asparagus? Fibre helps you maintain a healthy weight as it keeps you feeling full longer.

This Eggs Benedict recipe, with asparagus and whole grains, is high in fibre and uses fresh produce.

This recipe serves six. NEWS CANADA

Ingredients

- 1 (56 g) package dry hollandaise sauce mix
- 24-30 asparagus spears
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) white vinegar
- 6 eggs
- 12 slices Schneiders Peameal Style Bacon, cooked as per package directions
- 6 slices Dempster's WholeGrains 100% Canadian Century Grains Bread, toasted
- 6 slices swiss cheese
- Salt and pepper

1. Cook hollandaise sauce according to package directions. Keep warm.

2. Blanch asparagus in boiling water until tender crisp, about 2-3 minutes. Set aside.

3. Bring pot of water to boil. Lower heat to keep water just simmering. Stir in vinegar. Working one egg at a time, crack into a small cup and gently drop into the simmering water. Once all eggs have been added, cook until desired doneness, about 3 minutes for medium poached. Remove eggs from pot with a slotted spoon.

4. Place 2 slices of peameal bacon on each slice of toast, top with slice of cheese, layer of blanched asparagus and a poached egg. Drizzle with desired amount of hollandaise sauce and season with salt and pepper. Serve immediately.

No loose cannons need apply and other interview tips

Job search. Was that a candid career query or a trick of the trade?

KELLY PUTTER
CareerBear.com

Interview questions are often a mix of simple, straightforward experience inquiries and trickier ones designed to get a sense of your attitude, personality and work style.

The following questions get trotted out regularly so you should have a response at the ready, recommends Heather McNab, a job interview guru and author of What Top Professionals Need to Know About Answering Job Interview Questions.

Where do you see yourself in five years?
Your response to this question should be general because if you make it too specific that might lock you into goals the organization can't deliver on. And, definitely don't go in for the kill, says McNab, by saying you want to be director in two years. That could be viewed as negative. Instead, tell the interviewer you enjoy forward movement and discuss courses and professional development you've undertaken or plan to take that might pave the way. Suggest that you are also open to lateral moves within the organization because that's a great way to learn the ropes.

What are your greatest strengths?
Focus on the strengths that meet the needs of the hiring organization — with concrete examples. In order to answer this one well and talk about strengths that will solve their problems, you really need to understand the organization, so make sure you do your homework before the interview. "The job description will highlight what they're looking for," says McNab. "It's like the menu and these are all the ingredients for the job candidate ... you want to prove you have each of these ingredients."

What would you change about our company?
Don't say precisely what you would change because you might get it wrong without knowing the company from the inside out. Instead, talk about how you would identify what you'd change. This gives broad strokes about what you'd do in your first 30 days. It also shows them your problem identification skills and how you zero in on opportunities. Say things such as: "I never like to reinvent the wheel" or "I just like to make it work better." These types of statements give the impression that you're not wasteful or a loose cannon. "In a tight economy, that's a good thing to say in most companies," McNab says.

Share your shortcomings

Tell us about a weakness?

- What they're really doing with this one is determining if you're forthright and honest about your flaws
- This shows potential employers your level of self-awareness and emotional intelligence. Give honest answers. "Don't say I work too hard," says McNab. "They won't buy it. They want proof you're human."
- One good way to answer this question is to pick a weakness that you overcame earlier in your career. Be sure to identify the positive results that happened after you took steps to conquer it.

More moms say full-time jobs ideal for them, economy at play

Working mothers increasingly want full-time jobs, and tough economic times might be a big reason, according to a national survey.

In the Pew Research Center study being released Thursday, researchers saw a big spike in the share of working mothers who said they'd prefer to work full time — 37 per cent said that was their ideal, up from 21 per cent in 2007.

The poll comes amid a national debate on women in the workplace ignited by top Facebook executive Sheryl Sandberg, who writes in a new book about the need for women to be more professionally aggressive.

In Lean In: Women, Work, and the Will to Lead, Sandberg argues that women have not made true progress in the workplace over the past decade and that they need to raise their hands more and "lean in" if they want to land more senior positions in corporate America.

Not such a labour of love?

"Women aren't necessarily evolving toward some belief or comfort level with work. They are also reacting to outside forces and in this case, it is the economy."

Kim Parker
Pew Research Center study co-author

The shift toward full-time work in the Pew poll, however, coincides with the recession and may have less to do with career ambitions than with financial realities.

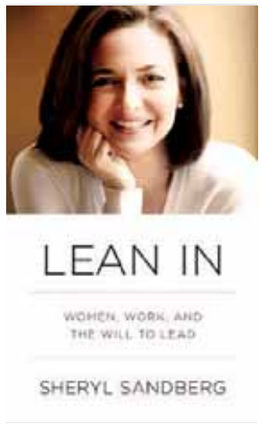
"Women aren't necessarily evolving toward some belief or comfort level with work," says study co-author Kim Parker, an associate director at the centre. "They are also reacting to outside forces and in this case, it is the economy."

Among women who said their financial situations aren't sufficient to meet basic expenses, about half said working full time was best for them. Of the women who said they live comfortably, only 31 per cent said full time was their best situation.

Melody Armstrong, 34, of Hampton, N.H., works full time and says she wouldn't have it any other way.

"It works better for my family, and for our finances," Armstrong said in an interview. "It helps pay the bills and we can enjoy the lifestyle we have. We need to have two incomes."

Armstrong and her husband have six children between them, a blended family with one child off to college and a baby at home. She works for Double Black Imaging, a Colorado-based company that sells medical monitors. Armstrong says her company gives her the flexibility she needs to work her sales position from home.



"I do some work early in the morning or after dinner," Armstrong says, adding she can adjust around her children's school and sports schedules.

GSP lays a beatdown on Diaz to remain champion

UFC. Montrealer successfully defends welterweight title for eighth straight time

The Georges St-Pierre legacy grows, with another battered body in the UFC welterweight champion's wake.

The latest victim is Nick Diaz, whose bizarre pre-fight attempts to get into St-Pierre's head were rewarded by a lopsided five-round beating at UFC 158 before 20,145 at the Bell Centre on Saturday night.

"He fought the perfect fight," UFC president Dana White said of St-Pierre.

All three judges scored it 50-45 for the champion, awarding him all five rounds.

St-Pierre's 11th straight win adds to his glittering UFC pedigree. The 31-year-old from Montreal has not lost in almost six years, since UFC 69 in April 2007 (a loss he avenged a year later when he won his 170-pound title back from Matt Serra at UFC 83). St-Pierre (24-2) celebrated his eighth straight successful UFC title defence, second only to middleweight champion Anderson Silva's 10. He also tied Silva with most championship fight wins (11)

The Canadian also moved into second place in most championship fights (13). And he now holds the UFC record for most championship rounds, at 47, surpassing Randy (The Natural) Couture's 44.

St-Pierre upped his UFC career record of takedowns to 84, landing nine of 16 against Diaz.

"He does a great job at taking guys not only out of their game plan, but completely out of their element," White said.

As expected, St-Pierre used his wrestling to control the chirpy challenger, rag-dolling him at times and bullying him on the ground.

Taylor called up to fill in for Kiprusoff

Miikka Kiprusoff GETTY IMAGES FILE

The Calgary Flames recalled goaltender Danny Taylor from the Abbotsford Heat of the American Hockey League on Sunday.

Calgary No. 1 goalie Miikka Kiprusoff will not travel with the Flames to Dallas for Monday's game against the Stars due to the imminent birth of his second child.

Taylor has appeared in two games (1-1-0) with the Flames this season, including his first NHL win on March 3 against the Vancouver Canucks.

Born in Plymouth, England, but raised in Ottawa, Taylor has backstopped the Flames affiliate in Abbotsford for the past two seasons. In 2012-13, Taylor is first in the AHL with a 1.96 goals-against average and fifth in save percentage at .924. He was originally selected by the Los Angeles Kings in the seventh round (221st overall) of the 2004 NHL draft.

Additionally, the Flames say goaltender Leland Irving had minor elective surgery on March 12. He's expected to return to play within two weeks.

Teamwork speaks volumes in Heat's streak

NBA. Miami moves into 2nd-place tie for league's longest-ever streak on court where it all began

Miami's record-setting win steak continued where it started thanks to an inspiring speech from Heat veteran Shane Battier.

The 34-year-old forward delivered a rousing team speech the night Miami started its streak in Toronto with a victory on Feb 3, and delivered another one on Sunday after the Heat defeated the Raptors 108-91 to win their 22nd straight game.

Of course, some credit should go to LeBron James, who poured in 22 points, 12 rebounds and eight assists to lead Miami's offence, but it was Battier's oratory skills that had the Heat talking after the game.

Miami's Dwyane Wade shoots over Toronto's DeMar DeRozan on Sunday at Air Canada Centre.
THE CANADIAN PRESS

"We found it fitting for him to give us another speech tonight after the game," said Miami head coach Erik Spoelstra. "I didn't say a word to him, just brought us together and Shane took it from there."

Dwyane Wade had 24 points and nine assists while Chris Bosh chipped in 18 points for the Heat (51-14), who matched the 2007-08 Houston Rockets at 22 and now trail just the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers (33).

"We're doing it together," James said. "We're doing it for one another, and just want to try and keep it going. It's not about the streak, it's about us getting better each and every day. Preparing to win each and every night."
